Detailed Analysis

Market Demand

The pedestrian traffic on Magsaysay Avenue scores an impressive 8.4/10, indicating a robust customer base. The area hosts two major malls (SM Savemore and another unnamed mall), one public market, and two colleges/universities. These anchor points contribute significantly to the foot traffic, making it an ideal location for a computer shop.

Population and Demand Anchors

The population of Naga City is approximately 209,170, providing a substantial customer base. The area is rich with educational institutions such as colleges and universities, which ensures a steady stream of students and young professionals who are frequent buyers of technology products. Additionally, the presence of two malls and a public market supports a wide range of consumer needs, enhancing overall foot traffic.

Location and Traffic Evidence

Magsaysay Avenue boasts a high traffic score of 8.4/10, which is higher than the scores for Centro (7.5/10) and Almeda Highway (6.6/10). This indicates a more active commercial environment and higher potential for customer visits. The presence of two malls, one public market, and two colleges/universities further strengthens the demand anchor points in the area.

Competitor Saturation

The competition level on Magsaysay Avenue is moderate, with only three existing computer shops. In contrast, Centro has two competitors and Almeda Highway has four. This suggests that there is less competition on Magsaysay Avenue, offering a better chance for market penetration and growth.

Customer Segments

The primary customer segments include students from nearby colleges and universities, working professionals, and general consumers looking for computer hardware and software solutions. The high foot traffic and diverse customer base make Magsaysay Avenue an attractive location.

Positioning

Positioning the computer shop as a one-stop solution for all computer-related needs, including repairs, sales, and accessories, can capitalize on the diverse customer base. Emphasizing value-added services such as tech support and software installation can differentiate the shop from competitors.

Operations

The operations plan should focus on efficient inventory management, skilled staff, and a user-friendly layout. Implementing a loyalty program and offering competitive pricing can attract and retain customers. Ensuring reliable internet connectivity and a secure environment will also be crucial.

Marketing/Launch

A multi-channel marketing strategy combining online advertising, social media promotions, and local partnerships can effectively reach the target audience. Offering promotional deals during peak periods like the Peñafrancia Festival and Kamundagan Festival can drive initial sales.

Site Acquisition

Given the high traffic and strong anchor points, acquiring the site through a lease agreement is recommended. The monthly rental cost is ₱101,880.00, which is reasonable considering the expected revenue. However, a thorough site inspection and negotiation are necessary to ensure the terms are favorable.

Risk Controls

To mitigate risks, conduct a detailed feasibility study, secure a solid lease agreement, and prepare for potential changes in the market. Regularly review financial performance and adjust strategies as needed.

Year 1 Financials

Assuming an average monthly revenue of ₱300,000.00, with operational costs of ₱150,000.00, the net profit for the first year would be ₱150,000.00. This projection assumes a conservative growth rate and does not factor in any significant marketing or expansion efforts.

In conclusion, the proposed Computer Shop in Magsaysay Avenue, Naga City, offers a strong business opportunity with a high likelihood of success given the robust market demand, strategic location, and favorable competition landscape.
